

Conducting research

The CPD Toolkit will benefit all adult learning practitioners who have the need to remain current and at the cutting edge of their field of practice.

Presented by Dr van Heerden von Solms, this distance-learning module aims to assist adult learning practitioners to develop the research competence required to study, analyse, test and refine good adult learning practices across a variety of vocational and occupational learning contexts.

You will learn a scientific approach to research and development including how to plan a research assignment, define target populous and sampling, compare data collection and data analysis techniques and compile a research proposal.

'Conducting research' is foundational to Continuous Professional Development for Adult Learning Practitioners.
